Episode Transcript

[MC] Welcome to the Limitless Women Podcast. Our mission is to help women business owners, like you, grow profitable businesses and actualize your opportunities to serve and give to yourself and others. Here's your host, the founder of Limitless Women, Laura Gisborne.

[Laura Gisborne] Welcome back to the Limitless Women Podcast. In today’s episode I am so excited to share with you one of my closest friends, and really one of my best role models, Caterina Rando. Caterina Rando is the founder of Thriving Women in Business and she has been leading women for multiple decades, which she will let me tell you at this point. She really teaches women through example, through her live events, through her books, through her own podcast, through her videos and she is really just a prolific, generous leader for us as women business owners. And in today’s interview, she and I had a chat about what has she learned. She has been in business for a while, what did she learn during Covid that she would maybe take into this new season of life and this new season of business. She will tell us a bit about what she’s up to coming up here, what kind of events she has coming up that you can go play with her, and really one of the things that makes Caterina so remarkable in my world is that she’s just an incredible, generous giver. She will talk to us a bit about why giving is so near and dear to her heart. So listen in and welcome to the podcast.

[Laura Gisborne] Okay, beautiful. I think we're working. I think we're live. Caterina, it's so good to be with you, my love. Thank you, thank you, thank you for making time to just play with me and share your brilliance. And, as I was saying before we started the recording, I love having you with me because every time I get a chance to sharing you with our community, you always bring magnificent value. And I know that's one of your personal core values is to always contribute in such a big way. So, thank you for being here.

[Caterina] Thank you. You know I always love to be with you.

[Laura] Thank you. It's always a pleasure. And, you know, God willing as we're recording this, we're still in the midst of Omicron is our current variation, right at the theme and we're, you know, we're doing our best. We're kind of making our way into the world and finding our new normal and I can't wait to hug you in person. That's what I'm looking for. I'm looking forward to you and I getting to play together soon.

[Caterina] Me too.

[Laura] Thank you. Thank you. I can't wait. All right. So, let's talk about kind of what – why I asked you to chat with me today. You and I have been friends for many, many years. I love to tell the story of somebody doesn't know us that when I started Limitless Women, I had a dream of creating an event that was really around legacy and as a fundraiser, combining that with education. And you were the first person to raise your hand to really blow me away with your generosity first and foremost because at that time our business model was in order to attend, you had to make a $50 donation. And we were hoping to raise $10,000 for the Inseparable Foundation and instead, we raised $35,000, so that was pretty hot. And, may I give them your number that you donated because it was so generous and amazing. So, you and I had just met and instead of donating $50, you donated $500. I was like, "Whoa! Who's this woman? She's so generous, so cool." And then, you came to the event and it was I was just such a baby, I was such a neophyte in this world of hosting parties if you will. We're pretty good a partying, but not so good at hosting a party. And, you came to me on day three and I was getting my makeup touched up and you said, you know, "My friend, I have some possible upgrades for you." And I said, "Oh, thank you so much. I would love to hear that. Should we jump on a quick call?" And you're like, "No, we need an hour." So, and we did and luckily for me, our hour has turned into many years of great friendship and, you know, you were one of my first mentors to teach me how to host events in a way that really create transformation and experience for women and I always learn from you. And, I'm just so thrilled that you're here now, so thank you.

[Caterina] I'm honored to be here and I'm honored to have been at every single Limitless Women event I think, which is wonderful and to watch you go from new conference producer to...

[Caterina] Phenomenal ultimate conference producer.

[Laura] Thank you. Thank you. Well, as we're recording, I'm not sure when this is going to go out or when somebody will listen to you, but, you know, we're getting ready for your number eight, for eight annual event and our plan is to be together in person since the last two years we've been online. So, really feeling so blessed about that and can't wait to be with you. Can't wait to be with you. Yeah, so good.

[Caterina] I can't wait. I can't wait.

[Laura] So, here are some of the questions I have for you today. I'm curious about what has changed in your business model as a result of the last two years? What, you know, what's – what's different for you because you were already super successful prior to COVID and I feel like if I understand it correctly from some of our other conversations, you know, you've just continued to grow in the midst of this change and shift. So, tell me a little bit about what's been different for you?

[Caterina] Well, I'm going to be full disclosure here, Laura. As you know I like to be open kimono, tell the truth.

[Caterina] You and I have because we've been friends and I've had the privilege of being coached and mentored by you as well, you have said to me several times over the years pre-COVID, "Caterina, you want to be more national. You want to reach ladies all over." And I was having a limiting belief that, "No, I don't want to be with ladies all over. I want to be with ladies three or four area codes north and three or four area codes south..."

[Laura] Right.

[Caterina] Because I want to get together live and in-person."

[Laura] Yeah.

[Caterina] Well, of course, when the live and in-person option went away, fortunately, I was already doing hybrid trainings at my center in San Francisco where we also had ladies Zooming in. At the same time, it was easy to go hundred percent virtual when the pandemic hit. What happened though is that I proved myself wrong because – and you were right, my friend, because now, we have clients at my community and myself, I have clients in Canada, I have clients all over the country, most of whom I have not yet met live and in-person.

[Laura] Right.

[Caterina] And it has been an honor and a privilege to serve them. And, also, it's been great for the bottom line and it's been great to see impact with ladies and other areas that I would not have touched before. And when – when the pandemic hit, because I was already Miss Zoom, I got my clients together right away, I told them to do everything that they could to go virtual ASAP. And in 2020, many of my clients have their best year ever and they continued to grow last year and now, we're in this new year which not sure what it's going to hold. But, the thing is Zoom is not going away, virtual is not going away, live and in-person will be more and more precious. And it leaves us with many, many new possibilities to grow our business.

[Laura] Yeah. I love that. And thanks for the reminder because, you know, I knew that kind of reminder. I remember because I, you know, spoken for you at yours – at your center and I remember that you were really an early adopter of the hybrid model. And there are so many people, there are so many leaders and, you know, friends that I talked to that host events now and they're all like, "I'm never going back to live." Now, I'm a little bit like you, I like live and in-person. I want to be with my girls. I want to just hold them and hug them. And there's just to me something that's just so precious and have been really I've been fascinated to see people stepping into transformation. Now, obviously when we work with clients and when you work with clients on telephone calls or on, you know, Zoom, we actually been kind of doing that for a long time, right? And so, phone calls for sure in our world. And, yeah, there's still some magic in both arenas, right? It's not an either or conversation. It's for us our desire moving forward is to have yes end conversation. How do we good stewards of the gifts that COVID, you know, did for us really catalyzed us to get online and gives me worked, you know, really we're not online. Obviously, we have a website, but we weren't active online. I was always the stopgap, right? Because we all know I'm like just kind of cookie that way. But, I, you know, it really it gave me the like, okay, if you want to connect, you're going to have to do it this way and it gave us an opportunity to just like use that reach so many more people. You know, our business was doubled last year and I know I give credit to several different things. One of them I want to just shout out to Audrey in case she listens to this recording. You know, Audrey Vanderstoop, I courted her. She worked for one of my coaches in the past and was like, "When I grow up, I want to have an Audrey on my team." You know, but she and I co-created a lot of new initiatives and she's already made a big difference, really made a big difference for us. So, yeah, thanks for sharing that.

[Caterina] That's amazing. That's awesome.

[Laura] Here is the question that I probably asked you like a dozen times over the years, but I'm never – I'm never tired of this question. And I think it's so important because women see you and you've been really successful for decades. Can I say that now? I don't know what the number is that I'm supposed to cut off that, but I know it's more than 20 years.

[Caterina] 29.

[Laura] More than 20 years, yes.

[Caterina] I usually just say 25 because I don't want to sound too old, but...

[Laura] You're ageless and timeless and you have no wrinkles. You look gorgeous. I'm not even sure how you're doing that, but maybe it's the Italian genes.

[Caterina] No, my friend, that's another conversation.

[Laura] You're looking great, my love. So, you know, 29 years of service to women of really, you know, somebody reached out to me recently and said, "Hey, do you know that one of your clients is working with Caterina Rando?" And I said, "Well, I hope so. I hope she is because I try to get everybody to know Caterina Rando. She's a remarkable mentor and so, thriving with what we know today as thriving women in business.

[Caterina] Yes.

[Laura] If you were to go back let's say 30 years because maybe there is that inkling or it was starting to be birthed and you were like thinking about it, what do you wish you knew then that you know now and what would you say to yourself back then? Like what would say, you know, to your younger version of your brilliant self that was just putting your toe in the water and wanting to go out and follow the stream? What would you tell her?

[Caterina] Many things, Laura, many things...

[Laura] More than we have time, I'm sure.

[Caterina] Yes. When I had – my first business was a café, I had a business coach. And that's how I got into coaching. She thought I would be a good coach, I had a master's in Counseling and I started to give ladies advice and they started to appreciate it. And that's how I got into coaching. The thing is, though, that when I started being a speaker and running groups and all of that, the first several years, I went to a lot of seminars, but I didn't have a real mentor helping me along my building my fempire path. And I wish I had invested more earlier and I'm going to say – say it, Laura, in women coaches because...

[Laura] Oh, that's interesting.

[Caterina] Yes. Well, the reason is because – and you know I only work with women, it's my sweet spot, it makes me very happy. But, the thing is that men and women are different and the way they coach and teach and mentor is different. And, what I mean by that specifically is that I could have used more encouragement and less you need to do this...

[Laura] Habits.

[Caterina] Right. You need to do this and you're not doing this and, you know, I could have used more love and support early on because early on, I was not as confident as I am today. And more you can do it and you're amazing and you have massive value to bring would have been nice to hear that more earlier. Now, it's nice to hear it, but now I don't need it, I could have really used it back then. So, that's part of it.

[Laura] Yeah. That's brilliant.

[Caterina] And the other thing is that today, I have a criteria for any coach or consultant that I would hire to help me grow my business. That's why I walked into your life was because I resonated with you and your values. Of course, I knew you were super smart, but there's a lot of super smart people on the planet, Laura. We want to pick coaches and mentors and step into communities that have the same values as us. And that – and people would talk about the values in your business, but they didn't talk about anybody that you let near your business needs to have the same values as you. And that's what I want to emphasize.

[Laura] So important.

[Caterina] Yes.

[Laura] That it's so important, you know, I was talking to you before we started here about, you know, the women that have mentored me, the women that have helped me step into my best version of myself today, right? And many of those women have nothing to do with business. But, it's an interesting thing of where we choose to spend our time, right? And who we choose to spend our time with. And I love, again, you're always like you're just the best cheerleader on the planet for the women in your community and our community for women really everywhere, you're such an advocate for women. And feel like when I was first birthing this, gives me a little segue to the giving circles. I remember when you and I first met and I fly to San Francisco and spend the day with you. And I think the first one I went to and I could be wrong about this, you can correct me, but I think the first one I went to was the one day, we had a hundred women donate $100 and raised $10,000 and I was like, "That's the most remarkable thing I've ever seen. This is so cool." And then, you know, I came back whatever it was six months or, you know, a year later, we came back and were in this place and, you know, I'm just not a city girl, I couldn't love it no matter to save my life. I was lucky I could drive in San Francisco, let alone find this place. But, I finally found my way and it was the most it was like this little tucked in tea room. Was that the one? Like it was a tea room.

[Caterina] Yeah.

[Laura] And it was like I feel like I was transformed to a whole different experience and you gave us the opportunity to give. And, you know, we were crafting what's grown into a philanthropy first organization today, but I got to tell you, I didn't know. And so, I just really want to say that you have always been such an amazing role model for me in so many levels. And I think that's one of the reasons I wanted to have this call is just to have – I feel like I'm going to cry right now, but to have more women that I know know you is always – is always a blessing for everyone involved. And I want to acknowledge you and thank you for being who you be and being such a good role model for me that giving wasn't a someday thing, you know, wasn't for me, but how do we incorporate that gracefully into this.

[Caterina] Right.

[Laura] And you've literally written a book about that. So, talk a little bit about giving circles if you would because I think it's helpful for women to say like I hear this often like, Laura, someday when I, you know, blah blah blah, I want to do what you do.

[Caterina] Right.

[Laura] And I'm like, well, girlfriend, you know, mine started with $10 here and $10 there and we didn't just get to hundreds of thousands of dollars in donations overnight, that happened over time and it happened as a community. So, talk a little bit about giving circles, honey?

[Caterina] Yeah. Well, I want to briefly share my giving journey if I could.

[Laura] Yeah, please.

[Caterina] First thing is I was raised in a household. My mother and my father actually met at a fundraiser that my mom was throwing to raise money for boys' town of Italy. Now, this is when she's in her 20s, okay? And that is an example of how my upbringing was, that wasn't – it wasn't ever not only was there not a question about giving, but my family did it with enthusiasm, with excitement. And, to be very clear, Laura, my dad is engineer, my mom was a school teacher, it wasn't, you know, where I'm a second generation Italian American. My grandparents came through Ellis Island. This is not a wealthy family, okay? But giving was standard operating procedure. And, when – one day, I was at a girl's – girlfriend's birthday party and she hold out this newspaper when people would pull out a clipping of a piece of paper. And she said, "Hey, I was reading this thing and, you know, if we all put our money together and we raise – put together $100, we can take out a girl – a girl out of servitude for a year." Well, my friend, the truth is I didn't even know what servitude was, but I know I didn't like it, okay?

[Laura] Yeah.

[Caterina] And so, that day changed my life because I thought, okay, I'm here I'm with these amazing women. She's an author and all her friends were all these author names that I heard of, right? And I thought, okay, I get to come I get to have this amazing experience. And I opened my wallet just a little bit and by the time I go home, a girl's life is changed forever. Well, not only was I all in, but by the time I got home in the driveway with my girlfriend, who I give great credit to. Her name is Valerie. I said, "Hey, I want to – I want to start a giving circle." And she – I don't know if those were the words I used, but she said that's a great idea. And I love her forever for saying that because a lot of times girlfriends step on our dreams, you know? They say, "Well, Caterina, aren't you busy enough? Don't you have enough on your plate?" Blah blah blah.

[Laura] Yeah. Yeah. Yeah. They're just trying to protect you or keep you in a place that's safe, right?

[Caterina] Right. And so, that's where it started and, Laura, you have been great inspiration to me to continue to raise the bar on our giving. And now, I do what you do, where I incorporate it into our existing events rather than have all these extra events.

[Laura] A little streamlined.

[Caterina] Right, because we have a lot of events. That has been – that has been wonderful. And here's the thing where you and I are on the same page, which I want to mention. The reason I got loud and proud about giving early is because I do not want women to feel like they have to wait until they're wealthy or they're retired to see themselves as having massive impact. Not by donating their time every day or every week, but by opening their wallets.

[Laura] Right.

[Caterina] And that's why I'm all about economic empowerment for women because the more women have money, the more they have control of their money, they're going to use it based on their values. And what do women value? Education, healthcare, they value lifting people up. And the more we can do that the better. So, that's why I am blissing to be using my business to raise money. I want to be an advocate for other women and an advocate for other women to do the same like you.

[Laura] Absolutely fantastic, yeah. How can someone find that book? Can they find it on your website?

[Caterina] My friend, don't ask me that question. I have to tell my...

[Laura] There's a lot of goodies on your website...

[Caterina] That's been on the list for the long time...No, you can get it on Amazon or anywhere else. It's called A Woman's Guide to Starting a Giving Circle.

[Laura] Okay.

[Caterina] It's by myself and C.J. Hayden, who I started the giving circle with. And it's a great book to start your own giving circle. Or you can do what Laura – what you and I do and you can incorporate the giving into your events.

[Laura] Right.

[Caterina] Live or virtual.

[Laura] Yeah, absolutely. We're doing that. We're doing another five-day coming up. And it was just really I saw this model while facing these challenges and I was like, "Please, God, no more challenges. We're challenged enough here right now."

Let's make it a class. Let's make it something fun like a masterclass that's really high – high value information in a short period of time, right? It's pretty much like an intensive. But, I saw everybody doing this and charging fees and it was like, why don't we use this to raise funds, you know?

[Caterina] Yes.

[Laura] So, I just want to celebrate this with you is because we, you know, we didn't get too loud and proud. I need more coaching from you on being loud and proud about our successes. I just put that in there, it's a pin there. So, in December we did a five-day to accelerate your business for 2022 and Feeding America has the most remarkable model. For every dollar, they provide ten meals. So, we were as a community be – they send this little thank you that said, you know, thank you, because of you 17,000 meals were provided. I thought what a fantastic leverage in your partnerships, right? Like there's a whole another conversation about how do we choose the nonprofits we choose, right? And that's one of the things that I want to not forget to say is that, you know, through the work with Girl Up Uganda, I feel like my husband and I have been transformed as humans. You know, our capacity for our depth of gratitude and understanding of what it is to actually take our dollars and be able to be blessed to be on the ground with girls in Uganda because of you because you introduced me to Girl Up Uganda. So, you know, Monica has become a dear friend of ours and – because of you. So, one more layer of gratitude for you, my love.

[Caterina] Thank you, my friend. Well, you know...

[Laura] Yeah. So – go ahead.

[Caterina] Well, what's beautiful is that you have gotten to see the impact firsthand, Laura. You know, it's beautiful to hear 17,000 meals. It's beautiful to hear you've given, you know, so many girls an education, but to actually meet those girls and see the community where they live, that is significant. And I'm sure it does change you forever. And this is why it's important for us as Americans to travel because you go anywhere, I mean, I live in Italy for a year, I've traveled all many places and you appreciate all the things that you didn't even know were worth appreciating when you go somewhere else.

[Laura] Exactly. Yeah. Well, I always say that – I always say that, you know, when people when it's in the context of telling my life story, right? And people are like, "Oh, my gosh, you've overcome so much." And I say, "You know, I've overcome a lot by American standards and it's very different." You know, I always had a roof over my head. I had access to free education. I had opportunities that many, many men and women in the world billions of people don't have. So, you know, it's deeply humbling for me more and more.

[Caterina] Yeah.

[Laura] Right? More and more. So, more and more and I'm so grateful to God for all the He continues to give us in the way of opportunities. And I remember Fabienne Fredrickson, she was my first marketing coach. I remember her saying, I always try to give credit where I hear something, right? I remember her saying, "God doesn't always send the check in the mail. What He sends is the opportunity." And I thought that just stayed with me. She was full of so many – so many wise things. Fabienne Fredrickson is just a wise, wise woman. But, I think that one was one of those where I think, you know, again, I prayed to be shown what are those opportunities He would have me be a good steward of each day, you know that's – that's the place, so, yeah. Tell me because we just have a couple of more minutes. I realized I have another call coming in a few minutes. What, you know, what has been – what's been surprising for you over the time that you and I work together? What did you kind of expect to happen and then what really happened because I, you know, when I say God always had a bigger plan, what's been surprising for you in the work that you and I have done together?

[Caterina] Well, Laura, you know that we – we met and we became friends and I started hanging out with you for I think it was two years, maybe three years before I stepped in and I said I wanted to work with you and be your client. And the reason I did that was because I saw the transformation and the – and the results in their businesses that other gals were having and I wish I had jumped in sooner. I wasn't able to jump in sooner because of some challenges that were going on in my life.

[Laura] Right.

[Caterina] And what I would say is today, I have not only a solid business, we have surplus, I am blissing to be able to do my thing in a way I want to do it. I am blissing to invest in gifts for my clients when we're doing all these fun things and...

[Laura] It's so nice.

[Caterina] You know, my last speaker retreat, I decide, hey, we're going to have afternoon tea and we bought all the ladies fascinators and you know I get to do all these fun stuff and I don't have to – I watch the numbers, of course, because I'm a responsible businesswoman.

[Laura] Right.

[Caterina] If I want to do something fun, I don't worry about the bottom line. And we gave them robes and totes and they had such a wonderful time. And I was blissing because it's the first time in two years that we've been able to get together live and in-person.

[Laura] Yeah.

[Caterina] What I would say is that today, I am the amazing confident successful grateful woman that I always wanted to be. And that creating financial ease in a woman's business is very important. Creating a great team, I have the best team ever is very important.

[Laura] So grateful.

[Caterina] And here's a guiding principle, I haven't shared enough super tips, Laura. Here's a guiding principle. I'm all about the relationship first and the revenue second. And even though I'm about the relationship first and the revenue second, the revenue is still fabulous.

[Laura] Yeah. So good.

[Caterina] And...

[Laura] And the level of freedom I'm hearing from you. You know, the level of freedom that we talk often, Caterina, around financial freedom and time freedom because that's what people are aware of, right? Women come to us and they don't say will you help me heal my poverty consciousness, they say I'm struggling I can't keep – I can't get it all done, right? I've got like so much on my plate, I would never be able to caught up. Or even though it looks like I'm making decent money, I'm not profitable. I don't have anything left every month, right? So, those are the two symptoms of the deeper place that we really love, love, love to hear and celebrate with you, which is this – this emotional freedom, this energetic freedom of feeling really just blissing is, you know, the word I gave you credit for all the time, like just you're blissing with something, bing, bing, bing. That joy and that ease just continues to magnify the abundance of your experience of life, you know, really what else is there?

[Caterina] Well, yes, and here's what I also want to say. At every new level we get to, new stuff comes up. And I will say that during this whole pandemic, Laura, I have had a counselor that I met with almost every week that I had support and we cannot have too much support. I went to Italy last October. I went on a little cruise last October. I'm going on 15 days to Hawaii and I'm going to Italy in September. And I'm telling you this because when I just added this latest trip, I had all these feelings of, is it okay? Is it okay for me to take time just for me? Am I being extravagant? Am I being, you know, should everybody think I should be working? My point is that there's always another layer to the onion of, you know, is it okay for me to live an amazing life especially when that's not how we have been living or how we grew up. And so, my point is that in order to grow, we have to have support and I, you know, got some support with all these challenges and there will be more and guess what? That's called growth, that's called life. And your business is absolutely your school for personal growth and transformation if you let it be.

[Laura] Yeah. So good. Well, and I love that you're building your business around your life and not your life around your business. That's a really important distinction that I've seen you give yourself permission for in the last few years. And you continue to be incredibly generous. And this is the deal, when you continue to grow and blossom and receive all these blessings, you know, money to me is meant to come to you and through you, right?

[Caterina] Right.

[Laura] So, the opportunity to you just never know who you're going to meet while you're traveling and you're out there doing it. And, you know, I would say one of the things that COVID and the whole experience has taught me is like if not now, when? I always felt like I've had like so many wake up calls in my life. I always talk about, you know, death, divorce, disease, the car accident last year, a little more than a year now, my health diagnosis. I was like, okay, just keep showing me how to be more present and more grateful, you know, to really enjoy every precious moment we have. So, thank you for being such an integral part of so many precious moments in my life and not only as a business mentor, but as one of my very best girl friends in the whole world and just such an honor and privilege to be with you. And I want to not forget the links, so CaterinaRando.com/links will take us to what?

[Laura] There you go. All right.

[Caterina] Thank you, my friend.

[Laura] So, if you don't know Caterina Rando, do yourself a favor, please connect with her, reach out to her on social media. She's easy to find and she's, yeah, just the most generous girl friend you could ever want to have in your life and it's my pleasure to introduce you. Okay.

[Caterina] Thank you, my friend. I love you.

[Laura] I love you too, sweetheart. Have a wonderful afternoon. Thanks for being with me.

[Caterina] My pleasure.

[Laura] Talk to you soon.
